

What was the purpose of the Tuskegee Institute?

To provide teaching and vocational education for African Americans

Who became president of the Tuskegee Institute in 1881?

Booker T. Washington

Why did feminism become stronger during the 1870s and 1880s?

Because millions of women worked outside the home and were active in social reform movements

What educational innovation did Johns Hopkins University pioneer in the 1880s?

Graduate seminars

What four woman's colleges were established in the 1880s?

Byrn Mawr, Vassar, Wellesley, and Mount Holyoke

Who was Jacob Coxey?

Jacob Coxey was a Populist businessman who led a march of unemployed workers to Washington to petition for a government work relief program.

What was the relationship between the Depression of 1893 and the formation of the Anti-Saloon League?

High unemployment
caused by the depression
led to increased drunkenness by male workers, which in turn led women to support an anti-saloon movement

What educational development grew out of the Chautauqua Movement?

Home study courses

Who wrote How the Other Half Lives? What did the author criticize?

1) Jacob Riis 2) Riis criticized the poverty, illness, crime, and despair of New York's slums.

What three kinds of political reforms took place at the state level during the early 1900s?

Primary elections, initiative and referendum, and the rooting out of political machines

Who was Robert LaFollette?

Robert LaFollette was a leading reformer in Wisconsin during the early 1900s.

What did the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People advocate?

An end to racial segregation